YANKS POISED FOR CAPTURE OF CHERBOURG

Infantry Reaches Fringes of Big French Seaport

Only 1,500 Yards From Waterfront

By JAMES M. LONG

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Thursday, June 22 (P) — American infantry patrols probed into the southern fringes of Cherbourg yesterday, reaching points less than one mile from the waterfront as the main army massed in overpowering weight of men and metal on the surrounding ridges in preparation for the final destruction of the Germans trapped in that vital Normandy seaport.

Supreme headquarters in its mid-morning communiqué said "Allied forces made further progress in the battle for Cherbourg, and the area held by the enemy is steadily diminishing. Our advance up the entire peninsula has been rapid."

Question of Hours

Fall of the port appeared to be but a matter of hours. Reports reaching headquarters during the day said the advancing Americans had found a soft spot along the Cherbourg inland road and railway that leads up from the south between the bristling forts du Roule and Océville, and had penetrated to within 1,500 yards of the Cherbourg waterfront.

Don Whitehead, Associated Press correspondent, in a dispatch wirelessly from the scene late last night, reported American patrols stabbing forward, testing out enemy pillboxes, but said the main forces were massing for the kill.

The German defenses on the southern rim of the city include blockhouses and mutually supporting pillboxes capable of sharp cross-fire, Whitehead wrote.

Street Fighting Predicted

The German opposition is stiffening, he said, and a street-by-street battle for Cherbourg is predicted by civilian refugees.

A "Stalingrad" defense is unlikely, however, Whitehead said, because of the tremendous superiority of the Americans on land, at sea and in the air.

The Germans, now back to their last-stand defenses, still show signs of the confusion which overtook them when the Americans sealed off the peninsula Sunday, and have given up considerable ground which American troops thought should have been defended.

German demolition squads labored with explosives and fire to try to wreck the great port facilities, while Allied planes showered them with leaflets advising immediate surrender. Allied Twenty-first army group headquarters said the city was unlikely to hold out much longer in any event.

"Turtle on His Back"

Its defenses are altogether the most elaborate yet encountered in France, but "we have the turtle on his back," said an Allied spokesman. The general advance up the peninsula continued rapidly, with a headquarters communiqué announcing the liberation of the towns of Tourville, Hague and Acqueville, southwest of Cherbourg, in part of a broad thrust that has carried the Americans within five miles of the sea.

On the southeast, the Americans have driven forward astride the main road north from Valognes to Cherbourg.

A Vichy radio broadcast at mid-morning said the bulk of the American army tank formations then were a mile and a quarter from Cherbourg.

On the British-Canadian sector to the east of the Cherbourg peninsula, heavy fighting continued in the Tilly-Caen sectors, but the series of attacks and counterattacks left the front virtually unchanged.

Germans Are Nuisance To AP Photographer

WITH AMERICAN FORCES BEFORE CHERBOURG, June 21 (AP) — German stragglers are wandering in to surrender, sometimes with amusing results, a message from Don Whitehead says.

Harry Harris, Associated Press photographer of Flushing, N. Y., found them very annoying at Barneville. "While we were eating, the Germans kept coming in and wanting to know where they could surrender. We couldn't eat for those bugs," exclaimed Harris.

DRIVE FOR FLORENCE

FOLLOWING THE FALL of Perugia to Allied troops driving rapidly northward, Florence became a goal at which the retreating Germans were expected to take a definite defensive stand. Meanwhile, the island of Elba was reported to be fully in French hands.

Nazis Retreating To Florence Line In North Italy

Perugia Is Freed Of German Forces

By LYNN HEINZERLING

ROME, June 21 (P) — Allied troops have gouged the last stubborn German defenders out of the ancient fortress city of Perugia, eighty-five miles north of Rome, and tonight were battering the enemy steadily back through the hills more than five miles beyond the stronghold.

Across the breadth of Italy the Nazi armies again reeled in retreat toward their long-prepared defense line beyond Florence, paying a heavy price in casualties and equipment for their brief hour of glory when they stopped the Allies at Cassino last March.

70,000 German Casualties

It was estimated today that the enemy had suffered 70,000 casualties since the Allied "annihilation" offensive opened six weeks ago, and the end was not yet in sight. Fresh German graves and rusted trucks, tanks and guns marked the flight of the once-proud Nazi army of Italy.

It was disclosed that the Fifth army, driving up the West coast, had taken prisoners from the Nineteenth Luftwaffe division, which left Belgium June 10, four days after the invasion of Normandy began. The Allied offensive here thus had achieved another of its purposes—to draw strength from German defenses in Western Europe.

Weather Helps Allies

A heavy rain which hampered Allied movement for three days lifted today, and in bright sunshine our armor raced after the enemy. Forward elements of the Eighth army, after capturing Perugia, quickly drove five miles northeast of the city. Another column occupied high ground to the northwest, within approximately sixty miles of Florence.

The swift Allied plunge up the Adriatic coastal road brought seizure of Grottammare, a gain of fifty air miles since the Nazis began retreating in that sector. On the West coast American troops captured Monte Pescali, a bitterly defended height which dominated an important highway junction north of Grosseto.

Russians Launch Two Surprise Offensives against the Finns

By RUSSELL LANDSTROM

LONDON, June 21. (P)—The Red army launched two new surprise offensives today against Finland's tottering defenses, driving both from the northeast and southeast in an effort to knock the Finns out of the war, Moscow announced tonight.

Springing into action on the new fronts less than twenty-four hours after announcement of the fall of Vilpuri, Finland's second largest city, Soviet troops struck north of Lake Onegzhskoe (Onega) with a powerful thrust that broke through Finnish lines east of Medvezhegorsk and also opened another drive along

Soviet Losses Officially Set At 5,300,000

Complete Defeat Of Nazis Looms

LONDON, Thursday, June 22. (P)

—The Soviet Information Bureau, in a review on today's third anniversary of the German attack on Russia, reported tonight that more than 7,800,000 Germans have been killed or captured in the three years of fighting.

During that same period, said the review broadcast from Moscow and recorded in London by the Soviet monitor, Russian losses totaled 5,300,000 men killed, missing or captured.

Nazis Lose 60,000 Planes

The information bureau said the Germans had lost 70,000 tanks, 60,000 airplanes and more than 90,000 pieces of artillery, while Russian losses were 49,000 tanks, 30,128 airplanes and 48,000 guns.

"In the course of offensive battles," the review continued, "Soviet troops have liberated some 1,500,000 square kilometers (579,200 square miles) of enemy-occupied territory and advanced nearly 2,000 kilometers (1,247 miles) to the west, reached our frontiers on a front of great length, and entered territory of Romania."

Millions Liberated

"Victories of the Red army have brought liberation from fascist captivity to millions of Soviet people. Our troops have deprived the Germans of sources of industrial raw material and food supplies in occupied territory."

"Their 'Lebensraum' in the east, about which the Hitlerites had dreamed, has become a graveyard for millions of German soldiers, a gigantic cemetery of fascist war equipment."

The review declared that "a considerable contribution to the success of the Red army was made by our Allies, the United States of America and Great Britain, who supplied us with very valuable strategic raw materials and arms and subjected Germany's military objectives to systematic bombing and thereby undermined Germany's military might."

No Chance for Germans

The review declared that "in the last eighteen months since the defeat of the German fascist troops before Stalingrad, the enemy has been unable to recover."

"Soviet troops . . . have demonstrated that all the walls and fortresses about which there was so much talk by the Hitlerites cannot stand if destruction and overcoming of them is undertaken by tried troops, tempered in battle."

"The Germans today face complete defeat."

Challenging German propaganda, the information bureau said "unity of the Allied States is now more stable than ever before."

"The Allied states have concerted plans for the complete defeat of Hitlerite Germany."

Praise for Allies

"The brilliantly achieved invasion of Northern France by British and American troops and the successful offensive of Allied troops in Italy signify that henceforth Germany will have to fight on European territory against the Red army and the troops of our Allies, Britain and the U.S.A."

"Touching on the Northern front, it said, 'the criminal ruling clique of Finland, which, to suit Hitler, rejected the magnanimous peace proposals put forward by the Soviet Union, has actually brought Finland to military catastrophe.'"

U. S. Bombers Land in Russia

Cross from Britain To Soviet Airport

A UNITED STATES BASE SOMEWHERE IN THE SOVIET UNION, June 21. (P)—Heavy bombers of the famed United States Eighth Air Force put down on Russian soil for the first time today in a shattering shuttle bombing against Hitler's fortress from Britain.

It was the first time in history any kind of bombers had flown from Britain and landed in the Soviet Union, although shuttle operation already was established between the U. S. S. R. and Allied bases in Italy.

(It was announced in London that more than 1,000 United States heavy bombers and a fighter of escort of equal size attacked Berlin Wednesday and the Berlin radio said part of the striking force roared on eastward beyond the Reich border.)

Soviet and American fighters escorted the Eighth air force crewmen on their mission and Soviet and American ground crews, working in harmony, welcomed Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle's big bombers to Russia.

"Just as was true with the Fifteenth (Italian-based) air force's original landings," said a commander, "so it is with this—a real Russian-American operation."

But today the smiling Russians, who greeted the first Americans with a terse "Allo, Joe," unimpaired their growing English vocabulary to: "Hello boy, welcome to the Soviet Union."

Americans poured out of the planes by the hundreds. On their first look-around on Soviet soil they behaved in a manner very similar to that of their comrades who made the first trip to these bases.

Father of Five Faces Execution

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP) — Fred C. Mergner, 41, the father of five children, was found guilty of first degree murder by a district court jury today in the slaying of his former housekeeper, Mrs. Charlotte Robinson, 30.

The death sentence is mandatory. Mergner, a former bakery clerk, pleaded intoxication, telling the jury he was "in a blackout from drinking." Mrs. Robinson was found dying in the street from gunshot wounds last October 25.

Mergner's wife, heiress to a bakery fortune, died several years ago. Mergner and their children lived in a $31,000 home purchased with his wife's money.

Japanese Press Gains in China

Advance 10 Miles South of Changsha

CHUNGKING, June 21. (P)—Japanese troops, bent on splitting China in half, have pressed southward from fallen Changsha along a sweeping, eighty-mile arc and in a ten-mile advance have fought to within fifty-five miles of the big rail junction of Hengyang, the Chinese high command said tonight.

The right extremity of this arc cleaving through Eastern Hunan province was near Siangsiang, fifty-five miles north of Hengyang.

The left extremity swung down to engulf the railroad town of Liling, seventy-five miles northeast of Hengyang on the east side of the Siang river. Lukow, in this same area, also fell.

A communiqué from Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters said medium bombers and fighters kept up a blazing patrol of the great Siang river, knocking out twenty supply launches, damaging other river craft, and striking at Japanese positions.

In Honan, the Japanese weakened the Chinese hold on the Peiping-Hankow railroad with a thirty-mile advance that captured Chengyang. This left only thirty miles more to be wrested from the Chinese to form a line running from the Lunghai railway east of their base at Chengchow to positions east of Sinyang, their base in Southern Honan.

Chinese Report Gain

Fighting raged east of the railway in the sector of Chowkiakow, and the Chinese made further progress in that sector, the high command's communiqué said.

But the best news for China came from the Salween front, where the Chinese are pressing west in a drive designed to reopen a supply line from India by linking forces with those of Stilwell's fighting through Burma.

Here, the high command said, dogged Chinese troops slogging through almost continual rain, fog and sleet in forty days have cleared the Kaoliung mountains of Yunnan—China's most difficult battle zone—of all Japanese.

Russians and Americans Meet near Berlin

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—NBC said a secret anti-German station said today that Russian fighters met American bombers east of Berlin and escorted them to Soviet bases after the attack on the German capital.

Berlin Pounded By Americans In Record Raid

43 U. S. Bombers Lost in Attack

By NED NORDNESS

LONDON, June 21 (P) — More than 1,000 United States heavy bombers under escort of equal size seared Berlin with fire bombs and explosives today in the greatest raid of the war on the German capital while Liberators led a stream of planes attacking the comet bomb launching platforms around Pas De Calais.

The Americans' twelfth and heaviest blow at Berlin cost forty-three bombers and fifteen fighters as they plowed through clouds and flak. Forty-nine German fighters were shot down.

Rocket Bases Captured

A report from the RAF said some rocket-launching sites on the Cherbourg peninsula had been captured intact, giving Allied scientists a chance to develop further methods of combating the jet-propelled explosives which have been hurled at Southern England for a week.

The Budapest radio went off the air shortly before midnight, indicating the Mediterranean air force may be striking at the Balkans.

At midnight the German radio said "intruder aircraft" were approaching Northwestern Germany.

RAF Daylight Attack

British Lancasters and Halifaxes, which usually do their bombing at night, flew their fourth daylight mission since D-Day, continuing the assault on the comet bomb grounds, after Liberators and mediums had unloaded their bombs and returned to base.

The Berlin raiders, with an escort of 1,200 fighters, bombed an aircraft engine factory at Basdorf, a Berlin suburb, the Berlin railroad yards, factories and other military objectives. There were some clouds but most combat wings bombed visually and reported results were good.

More Trouble for Reich

The Berlin radio, without Allied confirmation, said part of this formidable force roared on eastward, possibly in the first shuttle raid from Britain to new United States bases in Russia. Inauguration of such a route would throw another strangling aerial noose around the beleaguered Reich.

As Berliners dug casualties from the smoldering rubble, the German radio called the raid a retaliatory blow for the jet-propelled bombs, which winged over Southern England for the seventh straight day, and added: "But no matter whether bombs are being dropped on Berlin or not, the bombardment of London with the new weapon will continue."

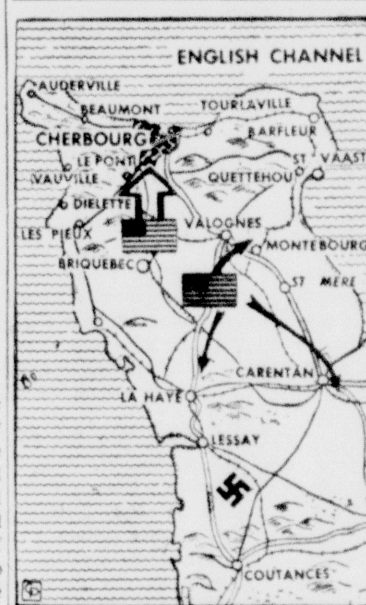

German propagandists, admitting casualties and damage in the capital, threatened counter-action with "bigger and more powerful explosives."

Score Favors Allies

It was considered likely the Flying Fortresses and Liberators, some of whom reported they did not see a single enemy fighter over Berlin, dropped more explosives on the capital in an hour than the Germans had been able to launch from their battered rocket ramps in seven days.

Throughout the day Allied airmen flew on countless missions over Normandy, pounding German transport and communications while other squadrons followed up heavy night blows at the rocket platforms. One force of Liberators, escorted by Thunderbolts, pounded the platform (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

CHERBOURG SIEGE

ALTHOUGH THE FALL of Cherbourg was anticipated within hours by some correspondents, Allied leaders point out that the Germans have a "three-ring defense" and one is about three miles outside the vital port. Aided by long-range guns, the United States forces were reported closing in on all sides with many German units in flight.

Ultimatum Gives Cherbourg Nazis Drastic Warning

Deadline Set For Surrender

LONDON, Thursday, June 22. (P) —An ultimatum to the German garrison of Cherbourg to surrender by 9 a. m. today, British time (3 a. m. ewt), was broadcast this morning by the Allied army field radio station in Normandy. The broadcast was recorded here by the London Daily Sketch.

"If you do not stop the fight now, you will never see your homeland again," the ultimatum said.

"Your situation is desperate. Thousands of planes are waiting for the signal to raid death on you. Guns of the Allied navies are aimed at you. You have no other way out than to capitulate. Should you, the commandant, not surrender, you will bear full responsibility for the lives of your men."

"We give you until 9 a. m. today, June 22, to decide."

"Should you surrender, send your emissary to our staff under protection of a white flag to the crossroad on the Valognes-Cherbourg road at the village of Slovae at 8 a. m."

The ultimatum warned the Germans in Cherbourg they were "completely cut off from the rest of the German forces in Normandy, the American army is ready to attack, the sea cuts you off from retreat; no reinforcements can reach you; the Luftwaffe is absent, as always."

4-H Club Members To Harvest Milkweed

BALTIMORE, June 21 (P)—Maryland members of local 4-H clubs will combine forces this summer to harvest and cure wild milkweed floss to be used in life preservers.

The milkweed plant grows in twenty-one states and the government, which is offering twenty cents a bag for the floss, hopes to harvest 3,000,000 pounds this year.

King Not Worried

Dewey Keeping in Close Touch With His Supporters in Chicago

By WILLIAM W. TYLER

ALBANY, N. Y., June 21 (P)—Governor Dewey is keeping in touch with developments at Chicago, where Republicans will name a presidential candidate next week, but still is mum on whether he will accept the nomination if proffered.

The governor declined at a press conference today to comment on an opinion expressed by New York Republican leaders at Chicago that he would accept a draft nomination. He disclosed, however, that he had been in contact with those leaders since their arrival in Chicago, where the Republican national convention opens Monday.

"I talked with Herb yesterday," the governor said.

He referred to Herbert A. Brownell, manager of his 1942 gubernatorial campaign, whose name has been mentioned in speculation concerning a national campaign manager if Dewey is nominated.

Dewey was silent on details of his telephone conversation with Brownell. He was more inclined to discuss his farm near Pawling than politics in the hour in which he talked, joked and banded remarks with newsmen. The farm is located in the southeast corner of Dutchess county, diagonally across the county from President Roosevelt's Hyde Park estate.

B. and O. Section Foreman Is Injured

Marko Starceovich, 51, of Moorefield, is in "critical" condition

Marko Starceovich, 51, Moorefield, W. Va., Baltimore and Ohio Railroad section foreman, was in a "critical" condition last evening in Allegheny hospital where he was admitted yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Moorefield man suffered possible fractures of the skull, collar bone and ribs. Tuesday morning, about 9:30 o'clock when the section speeder car he was operating collided with an automobile near Petersburg, W. Va.

Cpl. G. W. Bush, of the West Virginia state police, said yesterday that he was told the automobile driven by Charles W. Taylor, about 33, Moorefield farmer, was proceeding north on Route 220 towards Petersburg, and collided with the speeder car at the crossing at Petersburg gap.

Starceovich was thrown from the speeder car to the highway by the impact, Cpl. Bush reported.

The speeder was shoved off the tracks by the impact and stopped partially across the highway.

Taylor's mother, riding in the automobile, was slightly bruised, but the driver and another passenger were uninjured, the state trooper said.

According to Mrs. Starceovich, the section foreman left his men and went to Petersburg for spikes and was returning when the accident occurred. He was treated at King's clinic in Petersburg until yesterday when he was brought to the hospital.

Canvass Will End Today

The three-day scout canvass will be concluded this evening and any persons who have not been contacted to date are requested to contact Boy Scout headquarters and arrangements will be made to send a bond-writing team to their home.

Bond sales in Allegheny county as of Saturday, June 17, amounted to $344,419.75, according to a report from the Federal Reserve Bank, of Richmond, received by Joseph M. Naughton, general chairman of the campaign. Of this amount "E" bond sales were $110,443.75. The county goal is $3,000,000 and the "E" bond quota is $1,100,000.

Recent allocations to the county sales include Amstar Morton Company, Pittsburgh, $100,000, with half to be credited to the American Legion and $50,000 from the Western Maryland Railway Company, announced by B. T. McCoy, treasurer. Included in the sale total reported by the Federal Reserve Bank is an allocation of $95,500 from the Employees' Retirement Fund of Maryland.

McCorry's To Aid Drive

ains approximately 100 acres of land, plenty of it well wooded. The spring and land can be purchased in fee simple. It is located on an improved road. The slope of the land below the spring is ideal for gravity fed ponds. Plenty of sand rock on the property would make it possible to crush all the material needed for concrete construction—eliminating any costly haul on this heavy material. Temperature and climate offer no retardment to growth of fish as experienced higher up in the mountains.

Stresses County's Position

As a matter of policy, Smith adds that Allegheny county has always been among the leading counties of the state in the total number of fishing licenses sold and the amount of revenue collected therefrom and emphasizes that the inland fish department has never spent any money in Allegheny county on trout propagation. Neighboring counties of Garrett, Washington and Frederick all have their plants established and it would seem to be a balanced program to give Allegheny county some consideration along this line for the financial support that it has always given the department, Smith concludes.

The controversy subsided without decision after Kimble asked White: "Would you want to take the bar examination now?"

"No, I wouldn't," White responded, to which Kimble countered, "But you're a better lawyer now than you were when you passed the examination."

Rogers also wrote that the production program for the steel mills for the third quarter has been released and includes a tremendous increase in the production of 155 millimeter caliber guns and over together with the tremendous amounts of ammunition and shells for these guns. It is estimated, he said, that very close to top capacity must be maintained in the furnaces and over 100 per cent capacity in the rolling mills to achieve the required goals.

Capt. Lyttelton Apologizes for "Slur" at U. S.

By LEWIS HAWKINS

LONDON, June 21—(P)—Capt. Oliver Lyttelton, Britain's minister of war production, apologized directly to the House of Commons and indirectly to the United States yesterday for remarks in an address yesterday in which he was quoted as saying that the United States had provoked Japan to attack.

In an almost unprecedented statement, the minister disclaimed "any intention of giving this as his belief. He did not deny press reports that he had made the statement in an interpolation in a luncheon address to the American Chamber of Commerce, but he said that it was "manifestly untrue" that Lend-Lease aid had forced the Pearl Harbor assault. He said he was trying to express gratitude for American Lend-Lease aid prior to the Japanese attack.

Lyttelton's remarks prompted United States Secretary of State Hull to issue a formal statement last night declaring that "unfortunately" Lyttelton was "entirely in error as to the facts," and today even after Lyttelton's disclaimer his remarks of yesterday were characterized in Congress as "a slur against the United States."

Eric Hawkins of the New York Herald Tribune and Virgil Pinkley of the United Press were at the luncheon and agreed that Lyttelton had said in an aside:

"America was never truly neutral. There was no doubt where her sympathies lay. And it is a travesty of history to say that the United States was forced into war. America provoked the Japanese to such an extent that they were forced to attack."

Lyttelton, after issuing an amplifying statement last night declaring he meant to say that Japan "chose to regard" Lend-Lease aid as a war provocation, told Commons today:

"I want to make it quite clear that I do not complain of being misreported and that any misunderstanding is entirely my own fault."

"I ask the House to believe that the fault was one of expression and not of intention, and I hope that this apology will undo any harm which the original words may have caused here or in the United States."

Finns May Soon Appeal to Russia

By EDWIN SHANKE

STOCKHOLM, June 21—(P)—The Finnish government crisis was reported by the newspaper Svenska Dagbladet tonight to have been "defacto solved," a phrase taken to mean that the cabinet was reformed and presumably could now turn to Moscow for armistice conditions.

Confronted by a military catastrophe on the Finnish-Russian front, Finnish political leaders had been in urgent consultations.

Nimitz Reports

in the Marianas, the American invasion point. There was "no definite information," however, as to the prospective showdown. He added significantly:

"American forces may have succeeded in catching up with all or part of the Japanese fleet yesterday."

In a statement last night, Nimitz disclosed the enemy was massing his naval strength to accept the challenge so often hurled by the Pacific fleet but just as often passed up. He even hinted the first round had been fought.

In the prospective battle area is the American Fifth fleet. It is commanded by a tough, experienced admiral with a string of stunning victories against the enemy—Raymond A. Spruance. It has, in the words of Nimitz, the power "to take care of everything" the Japanese may fling at it.

The long, almost despairing, desire of the Pacific fleet that the Japanese accept battle was again reflected in these words of its commander:

"We hope the Jap fleet will stay in that area. As long as they stay, we have a chance to get at them."

Infantry Reaches

limited aerial operations Wednesday morning, but five launching positions of the Nazi flying bombs between Calais and Amiens were attacked by Allied medium and light bombers.

The Americans advancing on the Cherbourg peninsula overran some such launching positions, took them intact, and experts from Britain immediately went to examine them as an aid to the British defenses against the week-long shower of explosives.

Cherbourg was becoming a sort of European "Singapore." The Germans, apparently, had not anticipated having to defend the city from the landward "back door."

At least seven great coastal batteries pointing out to sea make it nearly invulnerable to direct naval attack, and the Americans pressing in from the south found the flanks on both sides of the peninsula guarded by extensive minefields and tank obstacles and ditches.

Nazis Hold Coastal Roads

Coastal roads to the east to Cap Levy and to the west to Cap De La Hague remained in German hands but both were under American artillery fire. Cap De La Hague was described as heavily fortified, but even this would afford the Nazis merely a delay rather than escape.

Cherbourg, which once was the third greatest port in France and which will be of prime value to the Allies in landing heavy equipment and reinforcements, shook to the blasts of German demolitions.

Naval sources declared, however, that such eventualities had been considered in advance and said they were confident that no matter what the Nazis were able to do, Cherbourg would be put back into working order quickly.

It is known that the Germans do not have sufficient ships in Cherbourg to block the harbor by sinking them, and a twenty-five-foot tide is counted upon to make it relatively easy to open at least a high-tide channel.

Republicans Map Foreign Policy

Agree on Plans For Postwar Era

(By The Associated Press)

All Republican factions were reported yesterday (Wednesday) to be pretty well satisfied with a proposed foreign policy plank calling for international co-operation—including use of military force when necessary—to maintain peace.

While the Republicans went ahead with "pre-convention" preliminaries at Chicago against a background of feverish activity by supporters of favorites for the presidential nomination, there were these other political developments:

Contributions Probed

For the first time, political contributions of labor unions were brought within the scope of a projected congressional investigation of the elections. Setting up the usual election committee to check on possible election frauds, the House authorized it to look into contributions by individuals, partnerships, corporations, committees or labor unions. Heretofore, the biennial investigation of congressional campaigns has been confined to contributions of corporations or other business associations.

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) opponent of a fourth term for President Roosevelt, said he doubted the Republicans could elect their presidential nominee this year. He told reporters at Chicago he thought the G.O.P. had little chance "unless they can break into some of the southern states, and I don't have much confidence that they can do so."

Spangler Confident

Republican national chairman Harrison Spangler has predicted the Republicans will win, whoever the candidate.

Arriving at Chicago, former Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas, 1936 Republican presidential nominee, predicted that Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York will be nominated on the first or second ballot.

Supporters of Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, who has the largest number of pledged or claimed votes of anyone other than Dewey, were

Labor Group Will Hear Talk on "Camden Plan"

The possibilities of establishing the Camden plan in Maryland will be discussed by Miss Elizabeth Cook, district volunteer specialist of the Office of Price Administration, at a meeting of the Western Maryland Labor Unity Conference to be held Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the Jenvey building, South Centre street.

Baltimore labor organizations are now considering adoption of the plan which includes the recruiting of union members and auxiliaries as price panel assistants and the participation of organized labor in compliance campaigns.

Under the plan, each local appoints three representatives to receive price complaints which are forwarded to ration boards for action. The union members also assist in the publication and distribution of selling price lists and assist union members in the preparation of consumer damage suits.

Draft Deferment Board To List Flagrant Cases For Veterans' Groups

The Joint Draft Deferment Board of Allegany County, by unanimous vote, has decided to abolish its previous practice of filing complaints on certain deferments, and in the future will investigate and compile a list of flagrant cases to be turned over to officers of new organizations of veterans of this war, or otherwise made available to members of all veterans' organizations for appropriate action.

This decision was reached at a meeting of the board Sunday in the American Legion home.

The board feels that inasmuch as the army now has reached its required strength, and that men now inducted will be used as replacements, the known evaders will be let alone, in the belief that their conscience and the knowledge of their act will take care of the future. The board will continue its monthly meetings in the Legion home, to investigate and secure data on persons, who are known to be evading Selective Service.

On the Right Track at Last

BALTIMORE reports that a local laws subcommittee of the state Legislative Council sitting there has drafted four amendments to the Maryland constitution, three of which would provide for additional county home rule and the fourth for lessening last-minute local bill jams in the General Assembly. The proposals are expected to be submitted at the June meeting of the council this week with a recommendation that they be acted upon at its July session.

One bill would prohibit the legislature from acting on certain local laws and would make necessary a companion bill enlarging the powers of the county commissioners to cover the measures. Two others would take administration of salaries and expenses of sheriffs and orphans' courts from General Assembly jurisdiction and give it to the county commissioners. The fourth would provide that no local bill could be introduced in the last twenty days of a General Assembly session unless the measure had been read and studied by the legislators and carried a Rules committee recommendation that it be introduced.

This is getting at the root of the problem and the move gratifies this newspaper, which has been a voice in the wilderness crying for just such course, it being contended that no relief from the disgraceful legislative jams in the General Assembly could be obtained except by constitutional provision.

As the newly drafted bills are at the moment unavailable for study it is impossible to pass judgment upon them. Perhaps the proposed amendments may need expansion with regard to the palpable necessity of providing for local administration under general laws and particularly a restriction on revising, amending or otherwise amending existing local government charters, which should be taken from the legislature and placed in the hands of the local communities.

There is need for caution also respecting the provision restricting the introduction of local bills during the last twenty days of the legislative session. This provision may be of dubious value. If there is adequate home rule provision, it should scarcely be necessary. But such a provision might be helpful in covering the transition from Annapolis to home rule. There could be a big loophole in this proposed amendment if legislators were able to introduce bills in skeleton form, or by title only as was the case over in West Virginia when a futile split-session scheme was tried out only to be abandoned. They might, unless restricted in some way, introduce a local bill having one effect, perhaps the opposite of that sought, and then be able virtually to introduce a new bill toward the end of the session by altering it in the other direction.

At any rate, the subcommittee is on the right track and it is hoped that something worth-while will come of its efforts in the direction it has laudably taken.

Mr. Curran as A Protester

LOUIS J. O'DONNELL of the Baltimore Sun, says the reason that William Curran, Democratic politician of Baltimore, was chosen to be Maryland spokesman on the Resolutions committee of the Democratic national convention is that Mr. Curran has recently developed a large talent for telling politically influential people on his own side of the party fence things that politically influential people do not care to hear.

As explained in the Baltimore Evening Sun, Mr. Curran is said to have delivered a "philippic" against the policies of the Roosevelt administration at a dinner attended by the postmaster general and politician-in-chief of the administration, Frank C. Walker. And, to show that he is no respecter of persons, he followed this up by telling the leaders of the CIO a few things when its leaders asked that the Democratic state convention endorse a fourth term.

The Curran selection is, as the Evening Sun admits, something significant in the light of this explanation. "It requires no great courage to tell the bigwigs where to get off," it says, "but talking straight to a group of voters is different, and when a man like Mr. Curran begins to do that, it is a sign that he is really speaking from conviction and not from expediency. It is a good sign, too."

Quite as our British friends express it. But those who run and read can see back of all this the recognition in high Democratic political quarters of the state of such strong opposition to the New Deal outfit among Maryland Democratic voters, that the Democratic leaders see they must do something about it even if only by way of appeasement. But the real lesson derivable is that Democratic voters displeased and disturbed by New Deal administration and New Deal policies and New Deal trends can get nowhere with any kind of vocal appeasement against the throttle hold the New Dealers have on the Democratic party machinery and that, in order to get anywhere, they will simply have to vote against the fourth term in November by means of the only alternative offered.

Preparations For V Day

D DAY having come and gone, the next one on the calendar is V day.

Following a survey of political sentiment in several states a Washington newspaper correspondent predicts that the Republican party will have a majority of from thirty-five to fifty members in the House of Representatives in Congress following November's elections.

Confidently looking forward to winning control of the lower branch of the Seventy-ninth Congress which assembles in January, 1945, Republican leaders are preparing for V day. Members of the tax-framing House Ways and Means committee have already begun an intensive study of all phases of federal taxation, with special emphasis on postwar tax policies.

The Republican goal will be the drafting of a tax bill that will provide revenue to meet an estimated postwar annual budget of $20,000,000,000; that will balance the federal budget and end the twelve-year New Deal record of treasury deficits; that will produce maximum revenues consistent with the encouragement of investments in productive, job-creating enterprises.

The record of the Republican party in administering fiscal policies for both federal and state governments is based on sound finance. Its record is built on the foundation of equitable taxation, balanced budgets, debt reduction and protection of the public credit.

The New Deal has been the most flagrant spender of the people's money in all history. The Republican party is dedicated to economy—to the saving of the taxpayer's dollars.

Japs Are Getting The Jitters Now

JAPAN is being put through a gantlet of propaganda. It is designed by the United States to give the Nips the jitters and it is succeeding in its mission.

A powerful American fleet suddenly deploys before a Japanese outpost close to the home islands and blasts it. Then a commanding officer—usually Adm. Nimitz or Gen. MacArthur—issues a statement about plans to plow through the Japanese straight to the home islands.

This is followed, periodically, by official announcement that Hitler will be taken care of first, just by way of compounding the Japanese confusion.

Reports from Normandy have told of Japanese fighting with the Nazis in defense of the coast. How many Japs were there is not revealed if known but it is probable that the number was small and that they were observers trying to figure out a way to block invasion of the home islands through first-hand knowledge of how the Allies invade.

Some saw but will never speak again and those that escaped probably were so badly mauled and confused by the suddenness and ferocity of the blow they have a hazy impression of what struck them and how. Presence of these Nips in Normandy is proof that Japan is greatly concerned about possible landings of Allied armies on the homeland.

Kansas farmers, harvesting a record wheat crop, are making heavy purchases of war bonds, thus providing both food and ammunition for the war.

If 4,000,000 cars have given up the ghost since the war began, why aren't parking places easier to find?

For Women To Remember

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Two paragraphs from the life of Lincoln Steffens, who was my friend. Written by himself.

Two paragraphs as true as any woman ever read.

Lincoln Steffens tells how Frederick Howe wrote his life and gave the manuscript proudly to his wife for her to read. She did and when she was finished she looked up at him humorously and said: "But Fred, weren't you ever married?" "Oh, yes," said he, "I forgot that. I'll put it in."

"I can understand this," writes Lincoln Steffens. "A love story is worth writing. I believe, only when it is understood, and a man seldom understands his own romance. I don't understand mine. It seems to me that I can see through a governmental or political situation, but human relations are beyond my comprehension. They happen to me; friendship has been the music of my life, but what does music say? And what does love mean? We should be able to answer this question. Love is coming of age as the human mind is, and two should be decently married. But my intelligence stops where love begins and again where love leaves off."

"And so it is, I think to observe, with males generally. They can grasp sex; that's what they practice and talk and think they know a bit about, but sex and love are or should be, one, as women know. One can navigate cunningly through a storm that blinds their lovers. If there is ever to be a science of love and marriage and if it is to be an applied science, women and such effeminate men as poets will have to know it. Eugenics will be the woman's art as it is her business now."

I think women would be happier if they'd keep in mind those two paragraphs. If they remember that about men and not expect something that is not in them. If they'd see men as they are instead of as they pretend to be—or as women think they are—and if they'd only see how men stumble blindly through love. That would take out some of the pain of living with men, for women. And women wouldn't be hurt so often. They'd be more at ease and they'd be better friends with men, even with men whom they love and who love them.

Action of Hillman Group Is Affecting Recess of Solons

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 21—The planned vacation of Congress is ostensibly to enable the Republicans and Democrats to attend their respective conventions. But the private understanding is that not much business will be attempted before August 1.

It seems the House members have been worried by the anticipated inner political activities of the Hillman - CIO group and insist on getting back home, not only for fence mending, but to find out who has been digging holes under their fences.

Senators also have been upset by the defeats of Holman, of Oregon, and Clark, of Idaho, although they are less worried about CIO.

These are the real reasons for the long recess.

Criticism in Prospect

Criticism no doubt will now pour down upon these furrowed legislative brows because they are abandoning the urgency of peacetime reconversion planning. The criticism will be superficially valid, because they are leaving behind at least one reconversion bill, although the truth is the bill could not be passed if they stayed. Too much controversy envelops it.

The urgent need of some more directive action is increasing daily. The problem is here now, though the solution is still absent. All tabs on business show the peak of production and employment was passed six months ago and declines averaging about three per cent are evident in all lines.

True a happier outlook for post-war at home is beginning to be evident behind the news. The stock market always, until now, has sighed and sagged at the prospects of victory. The final grand assault, however, sent it firmly up.

Kennedy Hopeful

Even the old arch-pessimist Joseph P. Kennedy, business seer extraordinary, made a speech in Chicago holding out hopes he formerly disdained.

The problem is simple. There is $200,000,000,000 of cash in banks and savings bonds. People are short of everything and can use this money to buy.

To sustain a satisfactory and successful nation we must have a national income for the people fifteen to twenty-five per cent below current war expenditures.

The solution must dovetail these facts into each other and provide a practical economic program for the next few years, which will not only do the job, but inspire confidence, now that it can be done.

Program Unconvincing

The administration has put forward a program which has not yet convinced anyone the job will be done. At the top of its setup is Mr. Byrnes in the office of demobilization, but that office is only a few desks and telephones.

Actually Byrnes, without any economic staff (unless you call Ben Cohen, the lawyer, an economist) is a peacemaker over the various conflicting government agencies.

Apparently C. E. Wilson was to take over the actual plant reconversion program, but he no sooner settled himself in that seat, than Mr. Donald Nelson announced a reconversion program (at the instance of the Truman committee, so they say). To make the confused state of affairs even more clearly discernible the army denounced the Nelson program.

Work Is Essential

A POOR SAMPLE OF UNITED NATIONS UNITY

De Gaulle Incident Is Viewed As Chilling Ardor for a World Peace Organization

By MARK SULLIVAN

The Republican committee on resolutions at Chicago this week, and the national convention itself next week, will write, among other platform planks, one approving an international association for preserving peace. The intention of an overwhelming majority of Republican leaders is that the approval shall be hearty, and that the proposed association shall be as strong as practicable. On this point, the Republican leaders in Congress co-operate with Secretary of State Hull. Their common hope and expectation is that a non-partisan plan can be arrived at, which will be assured in advance of endorsement by Congress and the people.

In short, as one of our two great political parties meets in national convention, the prospect for an international association to preserve peace is more than fair.

Unhappy Events

But what can be done is limited by what the people want or are willing to accept. The thought and emotion of the people are influenced by events that arise even though some of the events be momentary. And the unhappy fact is that certain present events have a tendency to chill the ardor of the people for a strong international association.

One is the de Gaulle incident. Gen. de Gaulle is the head of what is called the French Provisional Government. As such he demands recognition by President Roosevelt, and demands that as the Allied armies liberate France, de Gaulle's provisional government shall move in and take charge.

These demands President Roosevelt regards as inexpedient—he declines to grant them. Because of Mr. Roosevelt's declination, General de Gaulle shows a spirit of resentment, and acts in a way short of co-operation.

On this issue, argument rages between groups more or less familiar with the details, some supporting President Roosevelt, others de Gaulle. As to the merit of the issue, the average American has little information—practically all case—a cut in rates is anti-inflationary and therefore a good thing. The political reasoning is that a cut in utility rates is always good politics and never better than in an election year—which, unfortunately, has in it too much truth. On both grounds, the reticence of governmental circles is at least capable of explanation despite the possible loss of a considerable tax revenue. Nor is it to be forgotten that a general anti-utility war has been one of the staple policies of the Administration from the beginning.

How much truth there is in this gossip this newspaper does not pretend to know. But it finds itself wondering whether the distinction between improper "tax evasion" and legitimate "tax avoidance" is not pretty generally understood by public opinion to depend upon who is the beneficiary, rather than on the nature of the action itself. Which, doubtless, is quite a normal human reaction in its way, as the old adage about the gored ox has correctly pictured. The only trouble with it is that it is always threatening to get itself expressed in law and that is bad business.

Saipan Air Battle Is Termed Great Victory of War

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Destruction of 300 planes from a carrier-based fleet of the Japanese navy is one of the great victories of the Pacific war and may prove, as details are disclosed, to have been a turning point in our conflict with Japan.

For 300 planes take off from a number of carriers, and this means that Japan finally must have accepted the challenge of the American navy to do battle in the vicinity of the Marianas islands. It will be noted that the American fleet previously had damaged landing fields to the south of Saipan at Guam and to the north in the Bonin islands. There's no telling at the moment how many more Japanese carrier-based planes were lost in attempting to find landings in Guam or the Bonin islands after the main naval action drove them off.

Fantastic Claims

The Japanese, as usual, are broadcasting fantastic claims of damage done to our forces. The damage said here to be relatively light, but the important fact from a strategic standpoint is that a sizeable American fleet with plenty of aircraft carriers fought a battle comparable to that which we won at Midway in June of 1942. In that engagement the surface ships stood off at considerable distance while the airplanes fought it out. Aircraft carriers in that engagement bore the brunt of the struggle. Apparently the same thing happened in the Marianas last week.

But the outcome of the battle has undoubtedly left the Japanese groggy. They know now that unless they fight our fleet in the vicinity of the Marianas our ships will steam right into Japanese home waters. The only question, therefore, is where the Japanese will decide to accept the big risks that are involved in submitting their forces, inferior in quantity, to a fight with the American battle fleet.

Where Quality Counts

The Japanese must have had some land-based planes in the engagement because they have airfields in Guam, which is only 100 miles south of Saipan. But in this war it is the quality of the plane and its fighting power that counts, and not so much whether it comes from land or the deck of a ship. The American fighter planes that come off the decks of our aircraft carriers are better than the fighters which the Japanese probably used from their land bases—better in maneuverability, better in engine strength, better in fuel capacity and better in armament.

The Japanese aircraft have proved inferior in the South Pacific, but there the bulk of the Japanese aviation has been up against our army planes. The Japanese may have nourished a hope that against our limited aircraft carrier strength they could mobilize a larger number of fighter planes.

Eye-Opener for Japs

Undoubtedly the battle fought last week was an eye-opener to the Japanese navy. A Berlin broadcast quoted Tokyo officials as conceding that the capture of Saipan will give us bases for the use of the famous B-29 Superfortresses. The Japanese plan to make a determined fight for the Marianas. But the American navy has long ago discounted that fact and has prepared for such a contingency.

The best ships in our navy are out there in the Pacific—our best battleships, cruisers, destroyers and aircraft carriers. And the Japanese do not know how many task forces we have or what the strength of these forces happens to be. All the Japanese know is that the American navy is on the offensive and that a decision has been made to force a fight on the Marianas and in the vicinity of those islands.

Big Naval Base Looms

Another fact becomes obvious—the mobile fleet idea is effective on offensive attacks and raids, but there must be eventually a fixed base for naval supplies. Before the war began in 1941 we had Guam but failed to fortify it and hence lost it. Saipan has some natural advantages which Guam does not possess. But in the Marianas there must soon arise a big American naval base—bigger perhaps than anything we have ever dreamed of for the Western Pacific and perhaps even bigger than Pearl Harbor.

The battles—for there will be many—now going on or in prospect are for the possession of that base. And once we can acquire it, we can launch constant attacks on Tokyo by our Superfortresses as our mobile fleet seeks further to provoke the Japanese main fleet to come out for a final fight.

American Military Authorities
Alarmed Over Situation in China

By JAMES D. WHITE
Associated Press Staff Writer
(Substituting for Kirk L. Simpson)

Despite the amazing demonstrations of United Nations battlepower in Normandy and on Saipan, the Allied line sags threateningly in China.

American military authorities are watching with concern the Japanese moves in the remote but important Chinese theater.

These developments focus on a Japanese drive southward from Hangchow to capture the railway to Canton. The Japs have taken Changchow in their fourth try for that battle-scarred city and now are within 65 miles of the important Chinese rail junction of Hengyang.

The obvious Japanese purpose is to cut off the East China bulge. American military sources confirm that this time the Japanese show every evidence of being really determined.

Although the drive might secure the railway line to Canton for Japanese use, it is thought here that two other purposes probably motivate them more strongly than a desire to bolster their harried shipping lanes off the China coast by an overland supply route.

First, they want to neutralize American air bases along the railway and east and west of it. And, they want to obtain these same bases—or some of them—to build up their defenses against the American drive from the Pacific which Admiral Nimitz plainly has forecast would come against the China coast.

It was emphasized here by military observers that in spite of China's immense manpower and a will to resist which has been demonstrated now for nearly seven years, the Chinese simply do not have the material or the firepower necessary to halt the Japs.

The Japanese, like the Germans in France in 1940, literally can go anywhere in China they want to if they are willing to pay the price.

Once they go through a region, they can hold it with relatively little strength because of their ruthless reprisals against the people. The Japs worked out the technique of Lidice long ago in North China, where countless villages have been obliterated.

Under this ruthless policy, the Chinese victims simply cannot be expected to work actively against their conquerors.

The Japanese drive southward is regarded here as a very logical one, since the American drive in the Marianas will produce bases from which bombers can strike directly at Japan and be fueled from tank-ers coming directly across the Pacific.

Indeed, this American pressure is considered likely to reinforce Japanese determination to cut off the Allied salient in the China bulge and put it to their own use—in developing a continental defense.

Another reason for Japanese urgency is the failure of their Burma-Assam campaign to cut off supplies to the American air forces they knew were building up in China.

Japanese success in China this summer would mean further and costly delay in mounting the final Allied assault against Japan from Chinese bases.

Retired Teacher Says English Has Improved

Modern boys and girls use better English than youngsters did twenty years ago, according to Miss Pearl A. Eader, who retired last Friday after twenty years as head of the English department at Allegany high school.

Spoken and written English are on a more even level than they used to be, with the spoken version tending to improve, Miss Eader said.

She added that, although some bad English is used, the radio has been of great help in improving spoken English.

The retired teacher remarked that the average high school graduate today is less self reliant than his parents were, but she is not disturbed about it because, as she put it: "We live in a push-button age."

Miss Eader, who taught at Frederick and Western Maryland college, Westminster, before coming to Cumberland, plans to live at Brad-dock Heights, near Frederick.

Miss, since June 10, while Pvt. Saville, arrested by Cpl. Simonetti, has been AWOL from his post in Wilmington since June 9, military police reported.

A man booked as Milton W. Fazenbaker, this city, was fined $5 in police court yesterday on a charge of disorderly conduct, but Magistrate Frank A. Perdue suspended the fine.

James Hose, this city, paid a fine of $3 in police court yesterday on Pfc. John Riley, has been absent a charge of drunk and disorderly without leave from Camp Selby, conduct.

She added that, although some bad English is used, the radio has been of great help in improving spoken English.

Buy War Bonds and Stamps for Victory!

Your Bank Is In "1A"

AT THE END of the Fourth War Loan Drive, Treasury Secretary Morgenthau paid a glowing tribute to American Banks. The Head of the U. S. Treasury pointed out that the Banks had issued over 80% of all bonds sold during the last campaign. This responsible, time-consuming task was willingly performed without charge. When it is realized that this banking contribution—without a penny of compensation—made possible, easy, and quick the collection of money for the vital sinews of war, we can really measure the value of the Banks' contribution.

The banks have done more than raise funds by the sale of bonds. They have also made possible the orderly control of prices and supplies of foodstuffs and other commodities—through ration banking. American Banks also act as U. S. Treasury Agents for the collection of the withholding tax—an agency without which pay-as-you go income taxes would be difficult. For these many services, the banks receive little or no pay.

Most important of all, American Banks have broken all records by their direct purchases of government bonds. No war has ever been financed so cheaply. Banks receive from 3/8 of 1% to 2 1/2% on these bonds to which they may now subscribe. And they are ready to supply any sum needed to achieve victory—without regard to the interest rate.

But it should be remembered that Banks have played, and will play, their war role—at the real cost of lower income and higher expense.

TWO MEN ARE HELD FOR TRIAL IN SUGAR RATIONING CASE

HAGERSTOWN, June 21—(AP)—Two of seven persons charged with rationing violations after a federal investigation of widespread circulation of bogus sugar coupons were ordered held for grand jury action today by United States Commis- sioner C. Welles Little.

The two men, Howard T. Myers, owner of a small store at Dargan, was detained under $5,000 bond by Little on three accusations—possessing, ac- quiring and selling counterfeit sug- ar coupons.

Joseph Himes, proprietor of a small general store at Knoxville, was held under $1,000 bond on a charge of possessing counterfeit coupons.

Hearings will be held tomorrow for Frank Kefauver of near Keedys- ville and Herbert Bryan of Dry Run. Commissioner Little said he had fixed next Tuesday for the hearing in the case of Weaver Moser, a Washington county farmer.

At today's hearings, Charles H. Clarke, Washington county, an in- felder for the Lancaster, Pa. club of the Inter-state Baseball League, testified for the government that he sold sugar coupons to Himes for one-half ton of sugar.

Clarke, already held for grand jury action on charges of sugar and gasoline rationing violations, said he did not know the stamps were coun- terfeit.

At Myers's hearing, Clarke testi- fied he purchased sugar from Myers and sold one batch to Charles Pound, a Boonsboro baker who pre- viously waived hearing and was held for grand jury action on a charge of illegal possession of sugar.

Pound testified Myers had at one time approached him about buying sugar coupons.

A Westernport couple lived three years in the same house without speaking to each other, according to Morgan C. Harris, attorney for Mrs. Carrie M. Stoll, as a hearing opened Tuesday before Associate Judge William A. Huster in her action for separate maintenance.

The defendant in the suit is Wil- liam F. Stoll, an official of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Com- pany at Luke. The couple were married July 3, 1907 and have two grown children.

They later became reconciled and lived together until March, 1941, but did not speak to each other, Mrs. Stoll's attorney said.

Horace P. Whitworth, attorney for the husband, declared that the couple had joint accounts, and that Mrs. Stoll had withdrawn over $1,000 from a Westernport bank and a similar amount from a bank in Delaware "for her own use."

Score Third Straight Victory Over Boston Sox
 Siebert and Jess Flores Lead Mackmen to 5-2 Triumph

PHILADELPHIA, June 21 (AP)—Philadelphia Athletics led off with Siebert's slugging beat out the third straight victory over the Boston Red Sox today as they pushed over two runs in the sixth to lead 2 to 0 and then went on to win 5 to 2 before 2,024 fans.

Siebert teamed up with Jess Flores to spark the A's. He drove in the first run in the sixth, belting a single in the first and the win to market with two on in the sixth.

Flores, recording his third win of the year, held the Red Sox to only one hit in the last six innings, winning put the A's in undisputed place.

Frank Hayes's single, Siebert's double and George Kell's one bagger in the sixth broke the tie as the Mackmen added two runs to run 5 to 2 before 2,024 fans.

The Red Sox scored their first run in the sixth when the wind blew his fly ball from Joe Rullo and he crossed home plate.

Joe Cronin's single. The second out came in the third on Clem Adams' single. Skeeter Newsome's sacrifice and Pete Fox's double. The box:

Union Activities Will Be Debated At Radio Forum

Rep. Dirksen and Walter Reuther Will Be the Speakers

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
NEW YORK, June 21 (AP) — America's "Town Meeting" extending its tour to another Midwestern city, will be doing its Blue broadcast at 8:30 Thursday night from Rockford, Ill. The question before the rostrum is "Should Political Activities of Labor Unions Be Restricted?" The debaters will be Rep. Everett M. Dirksen, of Illinois, and Walter Reuther, of the CIO.

Now that Pannier Brice is off NBC of the summer, and in fact is not returning to that network in the fall, or she is to reappear on CBS, her 1 p. m. spot has been turned over to the dramatic series, "Those We Love," which is moving from Sunday afternoons.

Title Changed Again
The Blue again has changed the title of its Farm and Home series. When the format was shifted to include both farm and city folks, it was announced as "The Homesteaders." Now it is to be called "Farm and Home," incidentally, it is on the air at 12:30 p. m.

The Alfredo Antonini concert series on MBS at 9:30 is to be known as "Starlight Serenade" for the summer with a lighter type of music being presented.

Dale Carnegie has decided to take a two months' vacation from his fifteen-minute a week program on MBS at 10:15, and "Tiny Ruffner" is presenting the script. Carnegie continues the preparation of his talks about people.

Lucille Ball as the guest for the CBS Suspense thriller at 8 will do "The Ten Grand." . . . William C. Handy, known as the "father of the blues," is the speaker for the Music of the New World's "folk roots of jazz" on NBC at 11:30.

Use of Robots Sign Of Luftwaffe Defeat, Says Glenn L. Martin

Rep. Dirksen and Walter Reuther Will Be the Speakers

BALTIMORE, June 21 (AP) — The use of flying bombs by the Nazis is a sign to me that the Luftwaffe has met defeat, airplane builder Glenn L. Martin declared today, saying the Germans no longer can risk planes and flyers from a dwindling pilot pool.

At the same time, the head of the Glenn L. Martin Company predicted an air war that "we can expect automatic flying bombs to have great range in the next war."

"They will be capable of coming from Europe to America and will have a 5,000-mile range, but no one would know where they would land because of the inability to compute variable winds."

Remarking that the jet-propelled devices, while inaccurate, "spell total war against every living thing," Martin continued:

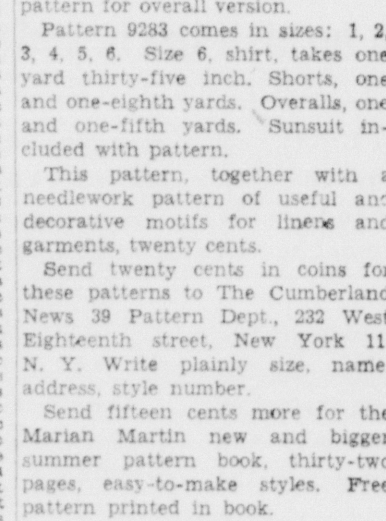

"It is my guess that the Nazis have been defeated in getting into the areas against which they now are using such weapons and they turn to this method as a result of this defeat. They have always hit populations generally. We have always chosen our targets."

Gov. Neely To Give Fireside Chat on University Case

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 21 —(AP)—Governor Matthew M. Neely announced tonight that he intended to take the "university case" to the people in a "fireside chat" over radio station WCHS, Charleston, and the West Virginia network next Wednesday at 9:30 p. m.

A statement from the governor's office said that he "intends with irrefutable evidence, to dispel the fog with which certain politically hostile... newspapers... particularly those of Clarksburg and Morgantown, are striving to defeat his understanding to make our highest institution of learning more useful to the young men and women of the state."

The announcement of the projected radio talk which the statement described as a "fireside chat," came after the West Virginia University Alumni Association added its criticism to the pending ouster of Dr. Charles E. Lawall, university president.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my dear husband, James Stein, who passed away two years ago, June 21, 1942.

Some may think I am not lonely, when times they see me smile. But little do they know the heartaches that I suffer all the while.

The blow was hard, the shock severe, I never thought his death so near. Only those who have lost can tell, the pain of parting without farewell.

God knows how much I miss him, never shall his memory fade. Loving thoughts will ever wander, to the spot where he is laid.

Fortress Pilot Is Home on Leave

Lt. Madison J. Walters, Garrett, Pa., Completes Fifty-one Missions

First Lieut. Madison J. Walters, 25, Route 2, Garrett, Pa., son of Robert G. Walters, Corrigville, and brother of Mrs. Edward R. Clark, Jr., 407 Franklin street, is spending a thirty-day leave in the United States after successfully completing fifty-one missions with the Fifteenth army air force.

Lieut. Walters arrived here Tuesday to spend a few days with his sister before going to his home in Garrett. He is accompanied by his wife, the former Miss Mary Farrar, LaGrange, Ga.

Last pilot of a Flying Fortress, Lieut. Walters completed his fifty-first mission May 7 when he flew the Fifteenth air force attack the railroad yards at Bucharest, Romania. His fifty-first flight, a routine hop, was completed a few days later.

The Garrett pilot flew on every mission with his unit from January 18 to May 17 in raids on France, Germany, Romania, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Italy.

Lieut. Walters flew on the mission over Romania April 16 when Staff Sgt. Saul Goodman of this city was taken prisoner by the Romanian government. He lived on a farm near Garrett, Pa., before joining the army February 7, 1941. His first assignment with the group was on January 18, 1944, when the group bombed the railroad yards at Pistoia, Italy.

For his outstanding combat record, Lieut. Walters has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Distinguished Service Cross.

Lieut. Walters will report back to duty July 21. For two years before entering service, Lieut. Walters operated a coal mine near Ellerslie.

Steel and Rolling Mills Get Greater Production Quotas

Although 7,592,538 pounds of scrap metal and 9,352,312 pounds of waste paper were collected under the industrial salvage program in Allegheny county in the first third of 1944, the War Production Board is calling for even greater supplies at the present time.

Barth S. Lyons, chairman of the industrial salvage committee, said last night.

Figures released by Harold W. Smith, secretary of the chamber of commerce, disclosed that 1,945,899 pounds of metal were collected in this county in January, 1,349,234 pounds in February, 2,466,126 pounds in March and 1,831,279 pounds in April.

A compilation of figures for the Fifth region of the WPB, in which Allegheny county is located, showed that March set an all time record for the collection of metal with 918,378,000 pounds being turned in. That month also was high for the four-month period in this county.

Kopp Denounces Thumb Twiddlers In Bond Appeal

Places Those at Home in Four Classes; Scouts Sell 263 Bonds

Speaking in behalf of the Fifth War Loan Drive last evening over radio station WTBO, on a program sponsored by Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, Dr. Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of Allegheny county public schools, said that as our boys are on the battlefield, the people at home may be divided into four classes.

Class No. 1 are those who admire heroes, praise high courage, and sympathize with disaster and suffering, he said, and added "they perhaps talk much about the war, but so far as being constructively helpful to the war, they might as well twiddle their thumbs or sit back in the yard and whittle."

The second class, Kopp related, is that which is made up of a selfish group whose support of their nation comes second, and then only when conditions are to their personal or class liking; if not to their liking, they do not hesitate to allow war support to lag.

Class No. 3, the speaker said, is that which with conscious effort viciously sabotages wherever possible the efforts of patriotic citizens to win the war.

Kopp stated that the fourth class is that which patriotically bends every effort to support the war program in all of its respects. "This is the class, that in the main is America, the class that has made America. On this fourth class our nation must count for support of the war program when our country calls. Let us not fail. Let each do his duty on the home front as he is able. The Fifth War Loan provides the opportunity," he concluded.

Postwar Flying Possibilities Are Told to Lions

Flier Says Landing Strips Should Be Built near Towns

Pointing to the present day safety of aviation as compared to other forms of transportation on the basis of miles travelled, Kit Carson, member of the Hagerstown Lions Club and manager of the Henson Flying Service, Hagerstown, discussed postwar flying possibilities at yesterday's luncheon meeting of the Cumberland Lions Club in Central YMCA.

Carson said airplane manufacturers anticipate considerable private flying after the war and advocate the construction of landing strips about 1,800 feet in length at the outskirts of small communities where the cost of constructing an airport would be prohibitive.

Plan Rapid Transportation

Private fliers thus could land their planes at the edges of communities and be within walking distance of their destination.

At the present time, Carson related, the Glenn L. Martin firm, as well as others, is making plans for the rapid transportation of perishable goods from Florida to New York so that fresh goods can be placed on the market in the latter city.

Present plans contemplate transporting the goods at high altitudes and taking advantage of the rarefied and cold atmosphere to freeze the foods while in flight. It is expected that such transportation would cover the distance from Florida to New York in half the time required by rail movement, Carson said.

Need Improvements

Discussing the helicopter, Carson said its speed as yet is still less than 100 miles per hour and therefore is not fast enough to enter into serious competition with airplanes. He added that he does not believe helicopters will come into general use until they are further improved.

Carson was introduced by Lloyd Trimmer, program chairman.

Fifteen members of the local club will attend the meeting of the Oakland-Mt. Lake Park club on June 26 to assist with the installation of officers of the Ridgeley, W. Va., club on June 27.

Gilbert C. Cooling, principal of Barton high school, is chairman of the committee on arrangements. Other members are Ralph R. Webster, principal of Allegheny high school, and Victor D. Heisey, principal of Fort Hill high school.

Salvation Army To Sponsor Boys' And Girls' Camps

Programs Will Be Held at Camps Stillwater and Tomahawk

The local Salvation Army corps will enter a new field this summer with the sponsoring of two week-long camps, one for boys and one for girls, Capt. Robert S. Ball, commander, announced yesterday, following the meeting of the advisory board.

Ball said the camp for girls will be held at Camp Stillwater, near Flintstone, from July 12 to 19, and that Salvation Army corps from Winchester, Va., and Martinsburg, W. Va., will join in the program.

Co-sponsors of the girls' camp with the local corps will be the Girls Culture club, a department of the corps, who will contribute fifty dollars toward expenses in addition to paying tuition.

Fifteen from Cumberland

Between thirty and thirty-five girls of the ages from 11 to 20 are expected to attend the camp from the three communities, Ball said, with about half of them from Cumberland. To be eligible to attend the camp, girls must be members of the Salvation Army or its affiliated groups.

Ball will be managing director of the camp with Mrs. Ball serving as camp mother and assisting in its direction. Capt. George Clendennan, Baltimore, divisional young peoples secretary, will be program director assisted by Mrs. Clendennan, Miss Evelyn Lashley, Allegheny high school senior, will be recreational director and counselor.

Although girls have been sent to divisional camps in past years, Ball said this will be the first time a camp has been sponsored by the local corps. Boys, however, have never been sent to camp before from the local post and their camp, to be held from July 26 to August 22 at Camp Tomahawk, near Martinsburg, will be the first venture in that line.

Majority Underprivileged

Approximately seventy-five boys between the ages of 11 and 15 from Winchester, Martinsburg and Hagerstown as well as Cumberland will attend that camp, Ball said. Of that group twenty will be from Cumberland and Ball said most of them will be underprivileged children.

Capt. Melvin Jewett, of Martinsburg, will be managing director of the camp with Ball as program director and Capt. John Churchill, Hagerstown, serving as educational director and chaplain. Other men will be added to the staff as assistants and counselors.

The boys' camp will be sponsored entirely by the corps, Ball said, adding that members of the advisory board yesterday contributed some funds toward defraying expenses. About $100 needs to be raised yet to meet expenses and although the local corps cannot solicit for funds, Ball said, any contributions from persons wishing to help in sending the underprivileged boys to camp would be greatly appreciated.

Scout Work To Start

Envoy Ray Southwood, who recently assumed charge of the South Cumberland outpost of the local corps, was presented to the members of the advisory board at yesterday's meeting, and Ball said that efforts will be started at once on the South Cumberland Boy Scout troop now that Southwood has arrived to take over the work.

Attendance at the Daily Vacation Bible school, sponsored by the corps has been exceptionally good in the first three days of operation, Ball reported, with approximately 300 children attending.

The meeting yesterday was the last for the advisory board until September.

Sen. Kimble Argues Examinations Unfair to Veteran State Employees

BALTIMORE, June 21—(AP)—A declaration by Senator Robert B. Kimble (R-Allegheny) that examinations required of state workers were unfair to veteran employees precipitated today one of the hottest debates in recent legislative council history.

"Asserting that 'state employees should get justice tempered with mercy,'" Kimble said of examinations required under job standardization procedures of the Standard Salary Board:

"I've had people coming to me with tears in their eyes who said that they knew they could do their jobs because they had been doing them for years, but were afraid of an examination in it," he asserted.

Performing a job adequately is a far cry from passing an examination in the subject, he avowed.

He asked that examinations be waived for experienced employees and that their classification, if any, under the survey, be left up to department heads and their boards.

Post "Pallbearers" Will Carry Caskets in Ceremony Friday

Members of the Henry Hart Post, No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars will be "pallbearers" for Hitler and Tojo Friday night. They will carry the black caskets up Baltimore avenue for a distance which will depend on Allegheny county's total sale of bonds in the Fifth War Loan drive, up to Friday night.

Under the plan of the county committee in charge of bond sales the $3,000,000 county quota line runs from the Western Maryland railway crossing to the B. and O. crossing. The caskets have already been carried a short distance along the street by a group of American Legion pallbearers.

The coffin-carrying ceremony Friday will be one of the features of the opening day of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Maryland Department, encampment here.

All VFW members in the county are making a special effort to buy and sell bonds this week in order to make Friday's move one of the largest drives of the caskets, since the drive started.
